WANT NO BABEL

Recently an application was presented to the Calgary city school board by some of the foreign citizens of that city to have their native language taught one hour daily in the city public school. Some time ago the school authorities were approached by some of its foreign citizens of a different nationality to have their particular language taught in the city schools, and very wisely the request was turned down, and it is hoped that the present application will receive the same treatment. It would be a bad precedent to grant the request, for if granted, every nationality in the city would naturally expect to have their own particular language taught in the schools for the special benefit of their children—and then, oh, what a babel we should have. Just imagine what our Canadian public schools would be like if that kind of thing was allowed. One of the greatest—if not the greatest—problems that faces Canada to-day is the assimilation of its numerous races that consists of people from every nation in the world, to become Canadian in the true sense of the word, and citizens of the great British empire. And it is safe in saying that the realization of this grand ideal can never be accomplished by introducing the bilingual question in our Canadian schools, particularly in the west. The foreign citizen, whom we respect as fellow citizens, who have and are showing their capability making good Canadian citizens, can better teach their children at home. There is an old saying: "That when we are in Rome, we must do as Rome does." This might apply to those of other nationalities who come to Canada. We want one common flag, one common school, and one common language—and that language must be English. The News-Telegram rightly puts it when it says: "When foreigners come here to settle they must conform to the laws, usages, and language of the country, for the moment they are permitted to run things as they prefer them, whether in language or law, they originate race and creed distinctions, the evils of which cannot be tolerated. In our public schools English must be the sole and permanent language."

Hon Robt. Rogers: "No doubt the saddest incident connected with the session just closed was that in which we witnessed the ignominious downfall of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who for so many years had been able to hide from the Canadian people his true position in regard to our British connection. The introduction by Mr. Borden of his naval bill to provide $35,000,000 for the common defence of the empire forced Sir Wilfrid to get out from behind his favored lines of Terres Vedées and acknowledge before Parliament and before Canada his bitter hostility to any real assistance and his adhesion to such proposals as would be virtue only in the event of separation of Canada from the British empire.

Just a few weeks ago the announcement was made that King George and Queen Mary had adopted a firm stand against gambling in its many forms. The same report intimated that his majesty read his Bible every day and that family worship was part of the daily life in the royal palace. Undoubtedly the attitude of our sovereign on these matters is one that might be copied with great benefit by millions of his subjects.

The agricultural experts on southern Alberta newspapers are hard at work. The Calgary News-Telegram advises farmers to first locate the cut worms and then treat them to a dose of Paris green and gives the assurance that this will prove a very effective remedy. "No doubt," says the Pincher Creek Echo, "Paris green will cure almost anything. But our agricultural friends want to overcome the cutworm evil in a humane manner. The Echo would suggest the rubbing of alum on the face of the worms. This will cause their mouths to pucker up so much that they will not be able to bite the roots of the grain." Or the farmer might try tickling the cutworms on the fifth rib, which might have effect of causing the death of the little chaps from laughing.

Twenty-four hundred miles of telephone wire will be strung by the department of telephones on rural lines this year, in addition to a large amount of long distance line connection and new exchange work in the growing towns and cities of the province. Over $2,000,000 will be expended by the government. At the beginning of the year there were in wire miles, 9,671 miles of rural lines, and 6,689 miles of long distance telephones in Alberta.

In a few weeks there is a probability that the U. F. A. will do something definite towards the establishment of farmers' banks in the province of Alberta. The matter has been under consideration and the association has been investigating the best system or systems to adopt. The farmers are generally in favor of the banks or credit societies, according to the secretary, P. P. Woodbridge, and the time is near when steps will be taken to start these banks in Alberta.

In his purchase of the Namaka farm, located just east of Calgary and containing about 10,000 acres of the best soil, makes Geo. Lane one of the largest land owners in Alberta. Four thousand acres are in crop and the farm is well stocked. It is Mr. Lane's intention to place his famous Percheron mares on the land and will continue breeding on a larger scale than ever.

The Hon. A. G. Mackay has been nominated as the Liberal candidate for Athabasca constituency, one of the deferred seats in the late provincial election.

In the final vote for church union in the Presbyterian general assembly last week the motion was carried 178 to 54.

The Colliard-Armstrong Appeal.

This now famous breach of promise case came up for hearing before the court of appeal at Calgary on Monday.

At the opening of the appeal George Ross, K.C., who appeared for Miss Colliard (now Mrs. Henry Lewis), said he was prepared to waive the claim to all the damages over $6,000, which meant that he would give up $14,000 of the damages allowed by the jury at the trial of the case. This the solicitor for the appellant would not agree to, but wished the appeal to proceed. After arguments by the lawyers had been heard on both sides, the judges of the supreme court en banc, without calling on the respondents, dismissed the appeal without costs. No mention was made by their lordships of damages.

It is stated that the case will go to a higher court at Ottawa.

SAV'D FROM SUICIDE

Letter to Him Announcing Her Intention Ruined to Public Station

Paris, France.—A woman, attempting to commit suicide by a girl of 19 named Nini, was prevented from doing so by the presence of a man of her brother, a railway guard.

The young man was swimming himself on the footboard of a train which was leaving for Paris when a letter without an envelope was handed him.

The letter contained a few incoherent lines from his sister saying that she was going to commit suicide, and that her body would be found in the sea at the end of the pier.

Young Nini at the risk of his life jumped from the train, retaining hold of the rail, and running along with the train, gave his sister a letter to a man at the other end of the platform, where he was waiting for the train.

On the footboard again, she shouted to her colleague to run as fast as he could with the letter to the police.

Fortunately, there was a police magistrate in the station, and he was fortunately with him, was a motor car just outside. The police magistrate dashed at full speed down the pier and arrived at Nini. Nini threw herself into the sea. The magistrate rushed to three customs house officers in a boat which was putting into the harbor and they succeeded in saving the girl when she was nearly 100 yards from shore. Her brother received the news of her rescue when the train arrived at Caen.

TOBACCO SMUGGLE IN PRISON

Official Quota of the Act Is Sent to Jail for Four Months

London, England.—An extraordinary case of the sort with which the public has been able to communicate since the tobacco trade was opened up in the United Kingdom.

Samuel Crowhurst, a civil servant at the Portland place, was charged with having illegally conveyed tobacco into the prison.

At the trial, which took place at the Portland place, the evidence was given by Mr. Crowhurst, who appeared for the treasury, fully admitted the facts.

He said that Crowhurst did not come in contact with the convict within the prison hall but had an opportunity of seeing convicts who worked apart from a convict's range outside of the prison.

One such man was a convict named Day, with whom Crowhurst became acquainted and used as a medium between other convicts and his friends.

At the end of last year, Day was transferred to the prison, and a watch being kept on the quantity of tobacco smuggled into the prison, it was found that Day was smuggling tobacco into the prison.

Chief Inspector Ward and Inspector Burton were sent from London to make a special investigation. They found that Day had received letters from his friends, and that he was smuggling tobacco into the prison.

They also found that Day had been smuggling tobacco into the prison for some time, and that he was using it as a medium for smuggling other goods into the prison.

FAMOUS HOSTESS GONE

THE LATE LADY DOROTHY NEV.
ILL. "KNEW EVERYBODY"

Remarkable Little Englishwoman Who Lived In Five Reigns and Whose Memoirs Are Revelations of Personal Side of Many Notables Had Many Bright Anecdotes To Tell of

London and, in fact, the whole country has sustained a great loss by the death of Lady Dorothy Nevill, which occurred as the result of bronchitis, at her residence in Charles street, Berkeley square, on the 10th inst. Lady Dorothy, who was with- in a few days of her 87th birthday, was the youngest daughter of George IV. William IV. Queen Victoria, Edward VII., and our present King. She was a daughter of the third Duke of Devonshire, and was con- nected with the royal family of the empire. In the books of recollections which Lady Dorothy Nevill published from time to time, she has left a record of her life, and of the "Reminiscences of Lady Dorothy Nevill," and "Under Five Reigns,"—she not only revealed a charming person- ality, but also a delightful memory of her friendships with the most interesting people of her time, but has also left a record of the many changes which have taken place in the world.

In 1847 she married her cousin Reginald Nevill, whom she described as "a gentleman of the old school." Shortly after their marriage they bought the Dangstein estate, on the borders of Hampshire, and lived there, taking great interest in the estate and in all country pursuits.

LADY DOROTHY NEVILLE.

man could bear it no longer, and called out in a voice trembling with rage, "Perhaps when you have killed off all my pheasants you will be satisfied."

Lady Dorothy lamented the change that had taken place in Society, the exclusive circle of her youth, to which the only entrance was by rank and intellect, had changed. "Now all is changed," she wrote "and wealth is no longer the passport to wit and learning. The question is not now 'Is So-and-So clever?' but 'Is So-and-So rich?'" She recognized that modern conditions had made this state of affairs inevitable, especially the change in the standard of wealth and comfort. In spite of her regrets she took a philosophical view of change. "We can help nothing in this world, and can only try to adapt ourselves to the changes."

A strong Unionist, she had no sympathy for the Radical and Socialist ideas. She had many friends of the same, among politicians of every complexion of opinion, and admirers of her husband, among others, as Richard Cobden and Mr. Chamberlain, or Disraeli and John Lubbock. Her son, John Lubbock, Lenborough, the son of the famous die, who took an interest in her from her first appearance in society, was her favorite. He was born in 1790, and had been viceroy-General of India when it was his duty to visit the East. She engaged, too, she met as a girl; to her was "not only the great politician, but the delightful friend. She devoted her leisure to him, and in general conversation in society, and having "at heart a profound contempt for volatility." Of Glasstone she had almost no story to tell, when he came to share about the safe-of life and property, and those public men could give no unguarded opinion. "Quite unconscious that I was a detective from Scotland Yard were watching behind his chair dressed as a woman, with another upstart, ready to spring with a dagger at the party afterwards to be given."

Another political opponent whose friendship she prized was Richard Henry Horne, her near neighbor in Sussex, whose home he had made only one of the other people in the neighborhood, who looked upon her views as dangerous to their prosperity. He had been a Tory, but now looked forward to the day when such were as they possessed should be enriched from their hands," and compared her to the "old lady" mentioned in Mr. Chamberlain's "Years Ago" as a Tory; she thought that "though I should not have left such a name in any other field of endeavor, I should not have been so certain that have alone conspicuously in
